defense. Some of the documents marked confidential and, therefore, unable to be reviewed include correspondence to and from NTSP itself.

II.

Argument and Authorities

The terms of the protective order worked adequately for discovery purposes, but now that the case has moved closer to the time when NTSP will need to respond to particular documents, the third-party payors' expansive use of confidentiality designations and the implications of those special circumstances of the communications, or whether the interpretation of the communications is affected by special meanings of terms or references to specific persons.

Allowing business personnel limited access to otherwise confidential information has been found necessary in antitrust cases. In United States v. Lever Brothers Company, the court found that counsel must be able to discuss sales and production data with its client's personnel in order to have a meaningful review of the information and an adequately prepared defense.³ The data was adequately protected from misuse by a protective order allowing disclosure only for consultation with counsel and preventing personnel from making copies, revealing the contents to others, or using the information for any purpose other than preparation and defense of the pending action.⁴ In reaching this decision, the court also noted that at the trial, personnel would

Respondent proposes this limited modification of the protective order that is in line with the protective orders found to be adequate in Lever Brothers and Bostitch. Only one of NTSP's limited. The use of these documents only for proper purposes will be assured by these conditions:

(1) Dr. Van Wagner will sign the protective order declaration; (2) Dr. Van Wagner will only view the documents while consulting with counsel and outside experts; and (3) Dr. Van Wagner will not be able to copy the documents, reveal the contents of the documents to others, or use limited access to specified categories of documents in order to assist in the preparation of NTSP's defense; and (b) grant such other and further relief to which NTSP may be justly entitled.

BEFORE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

IN THE MATTER OF

Docket No. 9312

NORTH TEXAS SPECIALTY PHYSICIANS, A CORPORATION.

Proposed Order Granting North Texas Specialty Physicians' Motion to Modify Protective Order

I.

Respondent North Texas Specialty Physicians filed a Motion to Modify the Protective Order on March 4, 2004. For the reasons set forth below, Respondent's motion is GRANTED.

Π.

The current Protective Order Governing Discovery Materials allows for the designation of documents as "Confidential" or "Restricted Confidential—Attorney's Eyes Only." Documents so designated cannot be viewed by NTSP personnel except at deposition or trial. However, because of the excessive use of confidentiality designations, the likelihood that these documents will be
