FTC/VA AG v. Inova/PWH

Gentlemen, following up on our call this afternoon, below is a written summary of our positions on the issues we discussed, as well as responses on the Protective Order issues raised in David Bergman's prior email on the PO.

Preliminary Injunction Schedule

As we explained, we believe the Preliminary Injunction proceeding should unfold as follows (a) plaintiffs file their opening brief for preliminary injunction (without expert reports), (b) then several weeks later plaintiffs serve their expert reports, (c) followed 7-10 days thereafter by defendants serving their expert reports, (d) followed 4-5 days thereafter by plaintiffs alone serving rebuttal/reply expert reports, (e) followed by defendants' opposition to plaintiffs' PI brief, (f) followed by plaintiffs' reply in support of their PI brief, (g) followed by a short PI motion hearing with no live witnesses. Our position is that declarations and deposition/investigational hearing testimony would be cited in, and attached as exhibits to, the briefs. We would also propose that

We would alternatively consider a three step expert report schedule you that we will begin serving discovery in the administrative proceeding shortly and will be using whatever we obtain in both proceedings. We would be willing to stipulate that any depositions taken in the administrative proceeding would not be re-noticed and re-taken in the plaintiff or def. seek to challenge. Plaintiffs believe 3 days is bare minimum

Par. 6 - requirement that any party respond to an application to the court for relief within 3 days (Defs propose 24 hours) to a court if challenged. Plaintiffs believe 3 days is a bare minimum Par. 10 - notice requirement if documents are to be shared with
