Dear Mr. Verne:

Thank you for your phone response to my query regarding the application of the premerger notification rules to the following facts. A plaintiff in a patent infringement suit is choosing to settle its claim by purchasing for an amount far below the reporting threshold the equipment, customer list and related business assets of the defendant arising from defendant's business which is the subject of the suit. It is possible that the claim of plaintiff against the defendant has a value in excess of $15 million. Such claim will be released.

In determining the consideration being paid for the assets acquired, we wondered if the plaintiff is not acquiring the technology, but merely assets and customer names. The Board of Directors of the plaintiff, therefore, could limit its determination of value to the equipment and customer contacts apart from consideration of the use of the technology.

As I understand your response, the Federal Trade Commission normally does not opine on

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

AGLEC -
