Dear Mr. Smith:

Section 7A(h) of the Act.
release under the provisions of the Act.

As we discussed recently over the phone, I would like some additional guidance and clarification on the application of the Hart-Scott-Rodino reporting requirements to the proposed formation of various regional joint ventures. A description of the potential transaction is outlined below and a diagram is

In addition, the four systems will jointly create a new centralized for-profit service company ("SC"). Although the exact percentage of ownership interests in the SC have not been determined, no party will control the SC (i.e. hold 50% or more of entities after this transaction is completed. No integration of the major assets of the [REDACTED] systems will take place, and the [REDACTED] systems will otherwise continue to compete against each other.

Under my interpretation of 16 C.F.R. § 801.40, and based on my discussion with you, since the NPJVs created by this transaction will be non-profit (see footnote 1), and because the parties will receive membership interests in the various NPJVs rather than voting securities, Section 801.40 would not apply and no reporting of the formation of any of the NPJVs would be required. Further, even if voting securities rather than membership interests in the NPJVs were received by the [REDACTED] systems, the formation of these NPJVs would be exempt from reporting under 16 C.F.R. § 802.40.

requiring the SC to be established by all four of the [REDACTED], because this is a for-profit entity, the formation of this joint venture may be a reportable transaction. If the commerce requirement and size-of-the-parties test is met, each [REDACTED] system meeting the size-of-the-parties test and contributing over $15 million in assets to the SC would be required to file a pre-merger notification form with respect to the

The parties would like to begin the formation of these joint ventures as soon as possible. I believe that this letter incorporates the details of the transaction and conclusions regarding the reporting requirements which we discussed over the previous phone conversation, that these conclusions are correct, and I will advise my clients that they may proceed with their intended plans.

I realize that despite my efforts to simplify matters, the complexity of this transaction may still create some confusion. Therefore, please call me if you need any additional information or clarification as you analyze this transaction.

Thanks for your help.

Sincerely yours,

PHN Staff -

In the attached letter, four non-profit hospitals propose to establish a number of non-profit joint ventures which will qualify as non-profits under the IRS code. The forming non-profits will also create a for-profit corporation.

First, I believe the PHN office looks to the 802.40 exemption for the formation of non-profits. However, since the to-be-formed non-profits do not issue voting securities, 802.40's specific language makes it not applicable under 801.40 filing is required!

Second, the formation of the for-profit corporation is covered by 801.40, to which the 802.40 minimum size test for the value of the less-than 50% of the joint ventures' voting stock coming back to each participant would be applicable.

Lastly, I do not think that the formation of the non-profits should in any way taint the formation of the for-profit joint venture (or vice versa) as long as the substance of the transactions is the formation of bona fide not-for-profit and for-profit corporations.

Please let me have your thoughts and comments.
Thanks,
