Re: Acquisition of Voting Securities of Foreign and U.S. Subsidiaries

Dear Patrick:

I am writing to confirm advice I received from you during a phone conversation on Friday, February 19, 1999 that the following transaction is not reportable under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Act of 1976, as amended, 15 U.S.C. § 18a ("HSR Act" or the "Act"), and the rules promulgated thereunder, 16 C.F.R. § 801 et seq., (the "Rules"). A, a U.S. person is proposing to acquire 20 percent of the voting securities of two subsidiaries of B, a foreign person. C, the first subsidiary, is a Bermuda insurance company, while D, the second subsidiary, is a U.S. issuer. The total purchase price for the minority interests in both subsidiaries is $30 million, of which

than $15 million and its annual net sales are less than $1 million. For purposes of this analysis, it is assumed that A and B meet the Size-of-the-Persons test in 15 U.S.C. § 18a(a)(2).

C provides reinsurance for a number of U.S. customers. In C's most recent fiscal year, the total revenues C received under these contracts was in excess of $25 million. But C maintains no offices in the U.S. and writes the policies for these U.S. customers in Bermuda. As a result, C does not report U.S. income from these policies for U.S. tax purposes. C does hold assets in the U.S. valued at more than $100 million, but these are either "investment assets" as of a foreign issuer is exempt so long as the foreign issuer does not hold assets located in the U.S. with a book value of $15 million or more (other than investment assets or voting or nonvoting securities of another person), and did not make sales in or into the U.S. of $25 million or more in its most recent fiscal year. Because C does not hold assets located in the U.S. to which the $15 million threshold in Rule 802.50(b) applies and has only $13 million in U.S. income from investments, A's acquisition of 20 percent of C's voting securities is exempt under the Rule. In addition, because A is acquiring 20 percent of D's voting securities for less than $15 million, A's acquisition of those voting securities is exempt under Rule 802.20(b) (exempting acquisition of minority voting security interest in U.S. issuer where aggregate value of all assets and voting securities being acquired by purchaser from seller is less than $15 million).

One possible issue raised by this analysis is whether, under Rule 801.15, which requires aggregation of certain acquisitions under the HSR Act, the value of C's voting securities must be aggregated with the value of D's voting securities for purposes of the $15 million threshold in Rule 802.20(b). If such aggregation were required, the total value of the voting securities A is acquiring from B would be $30 million, and the Rule 802.20(b) exemption would not be other acquisition(s) will not cause the dollar thresholds in Rule 802.50(b) to be exceeded. In this

Under the facts at issue, no such aggregation would be required. First, because C has no U.S. assets for purposes of Rule 802.50(b) and only $13 million in U.S. investment revenue, and D has less than $15 million in U.S. assets and less than $1 million in annual net sales, deemed not to have U.S. sales for purposes of Rule 802.50(b). I also asked you whether, under Rule 801.15, aggregation of the value of C's voting securities with the value of D's was required for purposes of the $15 million threshold in Rule 802.20(b). You confirmed that even if D's U.S. assets and sales were sufficient when combined with C's to cause the thresholds in Rule 802.50(b) to be exceeded, D's assets and sales should not be considered for purposes of Rule 802.50(b) because B is not a subsidiary of C. Based on these conclusions, A's acquisition of 20 percent interests in C and D would not be reportable under the HSR Act.

Please call me after you have had a chance to discuss this with your legal counsel. I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

No aggregation required of B or C. One can carve out 802.50(b) from the size of transaction (which is also used in 802.20). This allows you to apply 802.20 for the remaining acquisition of 20% of C for $3.0mm.
