Noah A. Brumfield ("[N]othing in either the FTC Act or the FTC Rules of Practice prevents staff from videotaping investigational hearings to further this objective.") (Exhibit I). Par and Paddock responded that in the absence of authority other than 16 C.F.R. § 2.8(b), which expressly provides for the stenographic reporting of investigational hearings, the three mitnesses mould not nortiginate in investigational hagrings recorded based as the standard to the standard of means. required by 16 C.F.R. § 2.7(d)(2) at ¶ 7. Furthermore, staff admitted that its attempt to record the investigational hearings is novel and unprecedented prior to this investigation. See id. at ¶ 4.

I. THE COMMISSION'S AUTHORITY TO RECORD INVESTIGATIONAL

PROVIDES THAT INVESTIGATIONAL HEARINGS "SHALL BE STENOGRAPHICALLY REPORTED."

Title 16 C.F.R. § 2.8(b) provides that investigational hearings "shall be stenographically reported and a transcript thereof shall be made a part of the record of the investigation." (Emphasis added.) In addition to this express provision, each and every other reference to the recording of investigational hearings throughout the pertinent regulations refers to stenographic

rearraing or our thing other then "atono mountie" moone

The mention of only stenographic means is conspicuous because the Commission amended the provision governing investigational hearings, 16 C.F.R. § 2.8, most recently in 1996—three years after the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure were amended specifically to provide for depositions to be recorded by "sound-and-visual" means. Fed. R. Civ. P. 30(b)(2) (1993). Thus, the express provision for stenographic recording in 16 C.F.R. § 2.8 and the absence of any reference to other means of recording must be considered intentional and meaningful.

"It is well settled that an agency is legally bound to respect its own regulations, and commits procedural error if it fails to abide by them." Esch v. Yeutter, 876 F.2d 976, 991 (D.C. Cir. 1989); see also, e.g., Battle v. F.A.A., 393 F.3d 1330, 1336 (D.C. Cir. 2005) ("[A]gencies may not violate their own rules and regulations to the prejudice of others."); Panhandle E. Pipe Line Co. v. Fed. Energy Regulatory Comm'n, 613 F.2d 1120, 1135 (D.C. Cir. 1979) ("[W]e do

- II. RECORDING INVESTIGATIONAL HEARINGS BY SOUND-AND-VISUAL MEANS WOULD OVERRIDE THE DUE PROCESS RIGHTS ACCORDED IN ADJUDICATIVE PROCEEDINGS.
 - A. Under the Commission's Existing Rules, Witnesses in Investigational Hearings Lack the Due Process Rights of Witnesses in Adjudicative Proceedings.

The investigational hearings provided for under the Commission's Part II, "Nonadjudicative Procedures" regulations are distinguished expressly from the hearings in adjudicative proceedings: "Investigational hearings, as distinguished from hearings in adjudicative proceedings, may be conducted in the course of any investigation undertaken by the Commission . . . " 16 C.F.R. § 2.8(a): see also Hannah v. Larche. 363 U.S. at 446 ("A typical

The distinction between investigational hearings and adjudicative proceedings turns on at least three limitations on the rights of witnesses in investigational hearings versus the traditional

a. At approximately 10:30 a.m., Mr. Brumfield telephoned Mr. McGrady to discuss the videotaping of the investigational hearings. Mr. Brumfield stated that the witnesses would attend a stenographically-transcribed investigational hearing, as previously agreed, but that the parties objected to videotaping as outside the scope of the F.T.C.'s authority. Mr. Brumfield reiterated that Commission staff had not provided any legal authority or any rationale supporting the videotaping. True

This provision could not be any clearer. All of the deposition transcripts of witnesses from an adverse party – Schering and Upsher – can be used at trial for any purpose. 16

With respect to investigational hearing transcripts, the specific basis for admitting them cases that have gone to trial at the Commission since 1990, the presiding ALJ permitted the use of demogition and invectigational bearing transposints as substanting and a second to 118 4 the need to spend a lot of time examining witnesses who are, or are associated with, an adverse party.

If we are permitted to use respondents' admissions from depositions and investigational hearings as substantive evidence at trial, we estimate that we only will need approximately four or five trial days to present our case-in-chief. In contrast, respondents' counsel have indicated that they will need at least sixteen trial days to present their defense. Time saved by allowing the reading of selected excerpts from transcripts likely accounts for much of the difference in these estimates. Thus, judicial economy is promoted by the reading of the transcripts, and it will expedite this hearing.

Authority to permit the reading in evidence of relevant portions of transcripts is found in FTC Rules of Practice § 3.42 and § 3.43.21 Rule § 3.42 gives ALJs broad responsibility and discretion to conduct fair and impartial hearings to take all necessary action to avoid delay in the disposition of the proceedings, and to maintain order."²² Further, Rule 3.43(b) gives the ALJ "control over the mode and order of interrogating witnesses and presenting evidence" so as to presenting evidence." Moreover, it furthers the interest in the efficient management of the presentation of trial evidence as contemplated by the Commission's Rules of Practice.

ALJs at the Commission frequently have ruled that Rules 3.42 and 3.43 permit the reading of deposition and investigational hearing transcripts at trial in lieu of live testimony. In at least three competition-related cases that have gone to trial at the Commission since 1990, the presiding ALJ permitted the reading in evidence of deposition and investigational hearing is [] crucial in this proceeding." Do respondents seriously intended to challenge the credibility of their own employees? We doubt it. Rather, the more likely purpose of respondents' motions is to disrupt the orderly presentation of complaint counsel's case-in-chief, so that respondents can attempt to argue their case through their witnesses in the middle of our presentation. This need not, and should not, be permitted.

Respondents Will Suffer No Unfair Prejudice by Permitting the Transcripts to Be Admitted in Evidence and that Portions Be Read at Trial

With respect to the admission and reading in of investigational hearing transcripts, respondents cannot claim unfair prejudice because:

submit that each party should offer its transcript excerpts during its own case. Contrary to Schering's argument, nothing in Commission Rule 3.33(g)(1)(iv) or the law requires otherwise.²⁸ That rule provides that if only part of a deposition is offered in evidence, the other party may introduce other portions of the same deposition for the sake of completeness.24 But the issue here respondents not only have had the opportunity to counter-designate portions of depositions and investigational hearing transcripts from which we identified excerpts, but they remain free to introduce in evidence portions of transcripts if properly and timely designated. Indeed, if respondents do counter-designate transcript portions, they would be part of the record and

With respect to the timing of respondents' presentation of counter-designations, we respondents will suffer no prejudice by being required to introduce their evidence during their defense.31 For the reasons stated above, complaint counsel respectfully requests that Your Honor
