

Bios

Alessandro Acquisti is an Associate Professor of Information Systems and Public Policy at the Heinz College, Carnegie Mellon University (CMU), and a member of Carnegie Mellon CyLab. He is the co-director of CMU Center Behavioral Decision Research (CBDR), and a member of the National Academies' Committee on the public response to alerts and warnings using social media and associated privacy considerations. Professor Acquisti's research investigates the economics of privacy. His studies have spearheaded the application of behavioral economics to the analysis of privacy and information security decision making, and the analysis of privacy risks and disclosure behavior in online social networks. His manuscripts have been published in journals across several disciplines (including the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, the Journal of Consumer Research, the Journal of Marketing Research, Marketing Science, Information Systems Research, the Journal of Comparative Economics, and MIT Transactions), as well as edited books, conference proceedings, and numerous international keynotes.

Mike Altschul is CTIA's General Counsel and is responsible for the Association's legal advocacy, CTIA's compliance with antitrust and other applicable laws, and he is an active participant in the development of the Association's public policy positions. He joined CTIA in 1990 after serving with the Antitrust Division of the United States Department of Justice. Prior to that, he began his legal career as an attorney specializing in antitrust litigation with Simpson Thacher Bartlett in New York City. During his year stint at the Justice Department, Mr. Altschul worked exclusively on communications matters, including the Modification of Final Judgment and the GTE decree, as well as the FCC filings and telecommunications industry mergers and acquisitions.

Howard Beale teaches in the School of Business at George Washington University, where he has been since 1988. From 2001 through 2004, he was the Director of the Bureau of Consumer Protection at the Federal Trade Commission. As Director, he was instrumental in establishing the national Do Not Call Registry, one of the largest redress orders in FTC history and attacked high volume frauds. From 1977 to 1987, Beales served as a staff economist and in various positions in the Bureau of Consumer Protection at the FTC. In 1987-88, he was a Branch Chief in the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs. He received his Ph.D. in economics from the University of Chicago in 1978, after graduating magna cum laude from Georgetown University in 1972.

Christopher Calabrese is the legislative counsel for privacy-related issues in the American Civil Liberties Union's Washington Legislative Office (WLO). He leads the office's advocacy Operation and Development (OECD) and foreign governments. He has written extensively on issues relating to law and technology. He has taught classes on Internet and telecommunications issues at Stanford Law School and Georgetown University Law Center.

Jim Halpert heads the U.S. privacy practice of DLA Piper U.S. LLP. He advises clients regarding compliance strategies for transactions relating to transnational, federal and state privacy and security regulations, industry best practices, and self-regulatory initiatives. He has extensive experience with European, Asian and American privacy regimes, and regularly leads teams across DLA Piper's global network advising on complex international privacy matters. He counseled clients regarding responses to more than 170 data security breaches since 2005, and advised many clients on global cloud privacy and security requirements. Representing a coalition of Fortune 500 companies, Mr. Halpert helped to draft more than a hundred U.S. state privacy, data security, security breach notification laws, and consumer protection laws. He has also helped to draft many of the United States' Internet privacy laws, including the Children's Online Privacy Protection Act, the CAN-SPAM Act of 2003, the USA Patriot Act of 2001, the Digital Millennium Copyright Act and Communications Decency Act.

Michael Hintze is Chief Privacy Counsel and an Assistant General Counsel in Microsoft Corporation's Legal and Corporate Affairs (LCA) group. He joined Microsoft in 1998, and his including the DMA, IAB, the Association of National Advertisers (ANA), the American Association of Advertising Agencies (AAAA), and the Network Advertising Initiative (NAI).

Thomas Lenard is President and Senior Fellow at the Technology Policy Institute. Mr. Lenard is the author or coauthor of numerous books and articles on privacy, antitrust, telecommunications and other regulatory issues. Before joining the Technology Policy Institute, Lenard was Acting President, Senior Vice President for Research and Senior Fellow at The Progress & Freedom Foundation. He has served in senior economics positions at the Office of Management and Budget, the Federal Trade Commission and the Council on Wage and Price Stability, and was a member of the economics faculty at the University of California, Davis. Mr. Lenard is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and holds a Ph.D. in economics from Brown University.

Randal C. Picker is the Leffmann Professor of Commercial

Consumer Privacy” and the Senate Judiciary Committee hearing on Protecting Mobile Privacy: Your Smartphones, Tablets, Cell Phones and Your Privacy.”

Sid Stamm is the Lead Privacy Engineer at Mozilla and is responsible for overseeing a team of engineers focused on integrating transparency and privacy into the fabric of the Web by building tools to give users more choice and control over their personal data online. Mr. Stamm joined Mozilla in 2009 and has designed and developed many of the security and privacy-related features in Firefox including Do Not Track and Content Security Policy. He is the author of a number of privacy-related Firefox Add-ons including, Force TLS and Universal Behavioral Advertising Opt-Out. Mr. Stamm has written and published numerous papers on privacy and security and holds a Ph.D in Computer Science from Indiana University.

Lee Tien is a senior staff attorney with the Electronic Frontier Foundation, a non-profit public-interest group based in San Francisco, California. He specializes in free speech, privacy and security issues and has written articles such as Disrupting the State Secrets Privilege (Case Western Reserve Journal of International Law), Doors, Envelopes, and Encryption: The Uncertain Role of Precautions in Fourth Amendment Law (DePaul Law Review), Architectural Regulation and the Evolution of Social Norms (Yale Journal of Law and Technology), and Privacy, Technology and Data Mining (Ohio Northern University Law Review). His major current policy areas include: Internet telecommunications surveillance and privacy; cybersecurity; identity management; electronic health records privacy; location privacy; biometrics; and smart grid privacy.

Dan Wallach is a professor in the Department of Computer Science at Rice University in Houston, Texas. His research considers a variety of different computer security topics, ranging from web browsers and servers through electronic voting technologies and smartphones.