
ANALYSIS OF PROPOSED CONSENT ORDER TO AID PUBLIC COMMENT

Summary: The Federal Trade Commission has accepted separate agreements, subject to final approval, from Chrysler Corporation ("Chrysler") and two advertising agencies, Bozell Worldwide, Inc. ("Bozell") and Martin Advertising, Inc., ("Martin")(collectively referred to as "respondents"). Bozell is the advertising agency for Chrysler, and Martin is an advertising agency for numerous automobile dealers and dealer marketing groups.

The proposed consent orders have been placed on the public record for sixty (60) days for receipt of comments by interested persons. Comments received during this period will become part of the public record. After sixty (60) days, the Commission will again review the agreements and the comments received and will decide whether it should withdraw from the agreements or make final the agreements' proposed orders.

The complaints allege that respondents created and disseminated automobile lease advertisements that violate the Federal Trade Commission Act ("FTC Act"), the Consumer print disclosures in Chrysler and Bozell's lease advertisements, including but not limited to "Limited model shown, higher" are inadequate to disclaim or modify the representation. The Bozell complaint also alleges that Bozell, the advertising agency, knew or should have known that this representation was false and misleading. These practices, according to the complaint, constitute deceptive acts or practices in violation of Section 5(a) of the FTC Act.

2. Failure to Provide Adequate Disclosures in Lease Advertising

The Chrysler and Bozell complaints also allege that respondents' lease advertisements represent that consumers can lease the advertised vehicles at the terms prominently stated in the advertisements, including but not limited to the monthly payment amount. These advertisements allegedly do not adequately disclose additional terms pertaining to the lease offers, such as the total amount of any payments due at lease inception. The existence of these additional terms would be material to consumers in deciding whether to lease the advertised vehicles, according to the complaints. The Bozell complaint alleges that Bozell knew or should have known that the failure to disclose adequately material terms was deceptive. These practices, according to the complaints, constitute deceptive acts or practices in violation of Section 5(a) of the FTC Act.

B. CLA and Regulation M Violations

Chrysler and Bozell's lease advertisements also allegedly violate the CLA and Regulation M. According to the complaints, these respondents' lease advertisements state a monthly payment amount but fail to disclose clearly and conspicuously certain additional terms required by the CLA and Regulation M, including one or more of the following terms: that the transaction advertised is a lease; the total amount due prior to or at consummation or by delivery, if delivery occurs after consummation, and that such amount: 1) excludes third-party fees, such as taxes, licenses, and registration fees, and discloses that fact or 2) includes third-party fees based on a particular state or locality and discloses that fact and the fact that such fees may vary by state or locality; whether or not a security deposit is required; and the number, amount, and timing of scheduled payments.

According to the complaints, respondents' television lease disclosures are not clear and conspicuous because they appear on the screen in very small type, for a very short duration, and/or accompanied by background sounds and images. The Chrysler and Bozell complaints, therefore, allege that these practices violate Section 184 of the CLA, 15 U.S.C. §1667c, as amended, and Section 213.7 of Regulation M, 12 C.F.R. §213.7, as amended.

II. Martin

A. FTC Act Violations -- Lease Advertising

1. Misrepresentation of Advertised Transaction

Count I of the Martin complaint alleges that respondent's automobile lease advertisements represent that consumers can purchase the advertised vehicles by financing the vehicles through credit at the monthly payment amounts prominently stated in the advertisements. This representation is false, according to the complaint, because the monthly payment amounts stated in respondent's lease advertisements are components of lease offers and not credit offers. Count I, therefore, alleges that respondent's practices constitute deceptive acts or practices in violation

Count V of the Martin complaint alleges that respondent Martin's lease advertisements state a monthly payment amount, the number of required payments, and/or an amount "down." Respondent Martin's advertisements, however, allegedly omit or fail to clearly and conspicuously disclose certain additional terms required by the CLA and Regulation M. Martin's radio lease advertisements, for example, allegedly contain none of the required lease disclosures or rapidly state the disclosures at the end of the advertisements. The complaint, therefore, alleges that respondent Martin's failure to disclose lease terms in a clear and conspicuous manner violates the CLA and Regulation M.

C. FTC Act Violations -- Credit Advertising

1. Misrepresentation in Credit Advertising

Count VI of the Martin complaint further alleges that respondent Martin's credit advertisements represent that consumers can purchase the advertised vehicles at the terms prominently stated in the ad, such as a low monthly payment and/or a low amount "down." This representation is false, according to the complaint, because consumers must also pay a final balloon payment of several thousand dollars, in addition to the monthly payment and/or amount down, to purchase the advertised vehicles. The complaint alleges that Martin knew or should have known that this representation was false or misleading. Accordingly, Count VI alleges that these practices violate Section 5(a) of the FTC Act.

2. Failure to Disclose Adequately in Credit Advertising

Count VII of the Martin complaint alleges that Martin knew or should have known that the failure to disclose adequately in its credit advertisements additional terms pertaining to the credit offer, including the existence of a final balloon payment of several thousand dollars and the annual percentage rate, was deceptive. These practices, according to the complaint, constitute deceptive acts or practices in violation of Section 5(a) of the FTC Act.

D. TILA and Regulation Z Violations respondent from disseminating motor vehicle closed-end credit advertisements that state the amount or percentage of any downpayment, the number of payments or period of repayment, the amount of any periodic payment, including but not limited to the monthly payment, or the amount of any finance charge without disclosing, clearly and conspicuously, all of the terms required by Regulation Z, as follows: (1) the amount or percentage of the downpayment; (2) the terms of repayment, including but not limited to the amount of any balloon payment; and (3) the correct annual percentage rate, using that term or the abbreviation "APR," as defined in Regulation Z and the Official Staff Commentary to Regulation Z. If the annual percentage rate may be increased after consummation of the credit transaction, that fact must also be clearly and conspicuously disclosed.

The information required by subparagraphs I.D. (lease advertisements) and II.D (credit advertisements) of the proposed orders must be disclosed "clearly and conspicuously" as defined in the proposed orders. The "clear and conspicuous" definition requires respondents to present such lease or credit information, as applicable, within the advertisement in a manner that is readable (or audible) and understandable to a reasonable consumer. This definition is consistent with the "clear and conspicuous" requirement for advertising disclosures in Regulation M and Regulation Z that require disclosures that consumers can see and read (or hear) and comprehend. It is also consistent with prior Commission orders and statements interpreting Section 5 to require that advertising disclosures be readable (or audible) and understandable to reasonable consumers.

The purpose of this analysis is to facilitate public comment on the proposed orders. It is not intended to constitute an official interpretation of the agreements and proposed orders or to modify in any way their terms.
