UNITED STATES OF AMERICA FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION WASHINGTON, D.C. 20580

Division of Financial Practices

February6, 2015

Patrice Alexander Ficklin, Assistant Director Fair Lending & Equal Opportunity Consumer Financial Protection Bureau 1700 G StreetN.W. Washington, D.C. 20552

Dear Ms. Ficklin:

This letter responds to your request for information concerning the Federal Trade Commission's (Commission or FTC) enforcement activities related to compliance with Regulation B (Equal Credit OpportuniAyct, or ECOA).¹ You request this information for use in preparing the Consumer FinandParbtection Bureau's (CFPB) 2014 Annual Report to Congress. Specifically, you ask for information concerning the FTC's activities with constructed Regulation B during 2014. We are please provide the requested information befow.

I. FTC Role in Administering and Enforcing Regulation B

The DoddFrank Act, signed into law on July 21, 2010, substantially restructured the financial services law enforcement and regulatory systemongother things, the Act made important changes to the ECOA, and other consumer, based as giving the CFPB rulemaking

¹ The £COA is at 15 U.S.C. § 1691 et sethe CFPB's Regulation B is at 12 C.F.R. Part 1002; the Federal Reserve Board's (Board) Regulation B is at 12 C.F.R. Part 202.

² A copy of this letter is being provided to the Board's Division of Consumer and Community Affairs, in connection with its responsibility for some aspects of the Regulations after the transfer date of July 21, 2011. Among other things, the Board retained responsibility for implementing Regulation B with respect to certain motor vehicle dealers, under the Dodramk Wall StreeReform and Consumer Protection Act (Dodramk Act or Act), Pub. L. 111-203, 124 Stat. 1376 (July 21, 2010). See, Dodd-Frank Act, § 1029 and Subtitle H.

³ The FTC has authority to enforce ECOA and Regulation B as to entities for which Consgress committed enforcement to some other government agency153de.C. § 1691c(c).

with the memorandum of understanding that the Commission and the CFPB entered into in January 2012, anconsistent with the Dod Brank Act, the Commission has been coordinating certain law enforcement, rulemaking, and other activities with the CFPB Commission is committed to continuing its enforcement of Regulation B, and it intends to do the same with other rules the CFPB issubbat apply to entities within the FTC's jurisdiction

II. Regulation B (ECOA)

In 2014, the FTC engaged in research and policyelopment related to the ECOA. Further, the Commission provided the public with numerous business and consumer education materials to promote business compliance with the law and to help consumers protect themselves from noncompliant businesses. The ster provides information regarding some of the FTC's research and policy development and educational initiatives.

A. Fair Lending: Research and Policy Development

In 2014, the FTC hosted a public workshope tamine the use of "big data" and its impact on American consume iscluding low-income and underserved consume Ranelists included representatives from federal government agencies and organizations, academic researchers rade associations, and industry op Tcs discussed included the scope of ECOA and Regulation Band how big data impacts the extension of credit, employment offers, and insurance to consumer the workshop was open to the public of the audience raised questions during the event hich participants answere fince the event he FTC has received more than sixty public omments responding to issues raised by the workshop.

The FTC also hosted a seminar on alternative scoring products, in which speakers described a variety of predictive analytics products offered by many rdstars to predict trends and consumer behavior in many contexts, including igleretilf ication and fraud prevention, and marketing and advertising the seminar included a discussion of the protections of the ECO Ahow its requirements can reduce discipitation in lending and ⁴ SeeFTC, Press Release, Federal Trade Commission, Consumer Financial Protection Bureau Pledge to Work Together to Protect Consumedan. 23, 2012, available at http://www.ftc.gov/opa/2012/01/ftccfpb;steenalso DoddFrank Act, § 1024.

⁵ Your letter also asks for specific data regarding compliance examinations, including the extent of compliance, whether certain predictive scoring products could fall outside its reade public participated by attending and asking questions during the event before and after the event, public comments were invited ind received on seminar issues.

In addition, the Commission hosted a workshop to examine how fraud affects communitygroup including older adults, servicemembers and veteransintcome communities, and AfricarAmericans, Latinos, Asians, and NatiAmericans⁸. It addressed marketplace experiences of people in these communities, and ways to fraeweithtrough cooperation, law enforcement, industry initiatives, community outreach and education. Among other things, the workshop included somequiats' consideration of fair lending issues?ublic participation was included in the workshop through questions and answers.

The FTC continues to be a member of lifteragency Task Force on Fair Lendiag, joint undertaking with the CFPB, the Depraent of Justice, the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and the federal banking regulatory agencies. Force members meet regularly to share information on lending discrimination, predatory lending enforcement, and policy issues. The FTC adsparticipates in the Financial Fraud Enforcement Task Force, including among othersits Nondiscrimination Working Group.

B. Fair Lending: Consumer and Business Education

In 2014, the Commission continued its efforts to educate consumers and busibests issues related to the consumer credit transactions to which Regulation B applies. The Commission issued a blog postated to its big data workshop, with information about the use of big data analytics in online advertisingcluding the FTC's then Chief Technologist's research finding¹⁰. The blog includes discussion of laws such as the EC, MA protect classes based on race, color, religion, sex or national origin; whether such protected classes could see entirely different ads due to diffent advertising delivery approachesd whether that may have a disproportionate adverse imports uch classes

Additionally, the Commission, in cooperation with the American Financial Services Association Education Foundation and the National Aotoile Dealers Association, updated its brochure offering consumer education on auto financing istuese various financing options available to consumers, including direct lending and dealership financing and additional points for onsumers to consider when reviewing financing optides. also contains worksheet templates allowing consumers to assess their monthly spending as well as a worksheet to compare competing credit offers new blog post on autos and financing, the Commission highlighted the importance of consumers reviewing information about auto dealers and financing options, with tips to avoid unscrupulous finance dealers. For example, it guided consumers to research the dealer with state Attorney eral and local consumer protection agenes for any unresolved complaints, and recommended that consumers ask to see their consumer credit application the dealership completely filled out, before signing¹ft.

Also, in 2014, the FTC updated its financial education site, with additional additional on diverse credit topics of particular interest to those engaged in educating con¹³ umers.

We hope that the information discussed above responds to your inquiry and will be useful in preparing the CFPB's Annual eport to Congress. Should you need additional assistance, please contact me at (202) 32692, or Carole Reynolds at (202) 32630

Sincerely,

JamesReilly Dolan Associate Director Division of Financial Practices

¹² See also Colleen Tressler, .