

---

that actually overstates the assets of the company as it includes assets that constitute the basis of a liability. For instance, the entity receives certain trust money from clients which are used for a certain purpose, and is therefore